ANCIENT JAPANESE LEGEND.

Foundation of a Belief That the American Continent Was Discovered by Them.

Foundation of a Belief That the American Continent Was Discovered by Them.

The history of Japan, like that of many other nations, shows that A merica was known to the ancients in all parts of the world. As soon as the art of marine navelations, and landed in Mexico not long after Columbus made his discoveries, says the Kansas City Journal. These old traditions and landed in Mexico not long after Columbus made his discoveries, says the Kansas City Journal. These old traditions have been from time immemortal kept alive by a series of ceremonies unto this day, and it is unnecessary to say that no evidence of ancient events is so strong as festivals and ceremonies instituted to preserve their remembrance. The traditional history of Japan in this matter is a counterpart of that of Greece and other Meditterranean nations, and makes reference to a lost or sunken island. In Kaempfer's great work on Japan this story is given: "Maniginam was an island in the Pacific ocean famous for porcelain vessels. The inhabitants were rich and luxurious and had a contempt for religion. The king was a mand Peliron. He himself was religious. He had a dream of a coming flood. It was to happen when the two faces of the idols in the temple turned red. The two idols were called Infoniwo and Awun—gods of generation. and dwun—gods of generation. Awun—gods of generation. Awun—gods of generation. Awun—gods of generation and awun—gods of generation and awun—gods of generation. The two idols were called Infoniwo and Awun—gods of generation and awun—gods of generation. He got safe to China."

But the enumeration of traditions found among the Japanese shich point to an early knowledge if not colonization of America have been been been of the ancient of the patient of ery and colonization of the con-tinent by Japan. The Japanese Columbus and hero of the first trip across the Pacfic was Jebis. He has since been deified, made the brother of god Tenzio, and called the Neptune of Japan.

The bulletin issued by the health department yesterday showed that for the last four weeks there have been 1,566 deaths in Chicago, a weekly average of 392. There are in round numbers 400 undertakers and 3,600 physicians. It is estimated by experts that for every death there are twenty cases of sickness. The arithmetical conclusion follows that the undertakers have not had a funeral each a week during the last month, while the doctors have averaged a little over two patients each.—Chicago Record Herald.

One of the most singular lakes in the world is the celebrated Pitch lake of the island of Trinidad. This lake spreads over an area of 99 acres, and its surface is composed of one great floating mass of asphaltum, seamed with veins of clear water. From it, and a similar lake in Venezuela, the world's supply of asphalt is drawn, states the Washington Post.

The pitch lake is a hideous place as far as smells are concerned, for the air all about it is heavy with noxious vapors, and from the center of the lake gushes a fountain of liquid asphaltum, is which there float and break bubbles containing most horrible gases.

The workmen go out on the sur The workmen go out on the sur-face of this lake and out great slabs of asphaltum, which are car-ried away. But the next morning the hole they left is filled up again with the pitch which has risen during the night, so that the sup-ply seems to be inexhaustible. Then one day the sides of the lake
